Description

Vintage Photography, Antique Alpine Mountaineering Photograph.
'CLIMBER' Simelistock, Switzerland, a new mounted black and white photograph after an original 1930's skiing photograph.
Black & white alpine photos are the perfect addition to any home or ski lodge, so please, do check out our other ski photos and winter landscapes.
Prior to being a recreational activity skiing was purely a means of travelling from A to B through the snow, it only started to become the sport it is today in the mid-1800's.
The price displayed is for the mounted photo only.

The external size of the mount is 20 ½" x 14 ¾" - image size 15 ½" X 10".

Engelhoerner is the name for a group of limestone mountains that are hidden behind several higher mountains like the Wetterhorn and Wildgerst. These small mountains (Rosenlauistock (2198 m), the Kingspitz, Simmelistock, Mittelgruppe, etc.) are well sort after by rock climbers as there is a huge choice of easy and difficult routes.

Within the Engelhoerner is a tiny valley, called Ochsental, looking to the west. The first Engelhorn hut was built in this valley in the year 1912 by the Academic Alpine Club Berne, since this lonesome and creekless valley is the starting point for the majority of the climbs. An avalanche destroyed this hut and the present accomodation is surrounded by trees at the foot of the Simelistock, 15 minutes below the Ochsen Valley.

The Ochsen Valley is surrounded by the following peaks (starting north clockwise):
Klein Simelistock, Gross Simelistock, Vorderspitze, Gertrudspitze, Ulrichspitze, Mittelspitze Kl. Engelhorn, Gemsenspitze, Gr. Engelhorn, Haubenstock, Niklausspitze, Froschkopf, Prinzen, Kingspitz, Kastor, Pollux, Sattelspitze, Engelburg, Tannspitze, Rosenlauistock.

The alpine photograph is available in a black frame with burgundy undercoat, the glazing is clarity+ premium synthetic glass. Images of the frame are shown. The external size of the frame is 22" x 16" and it is priced at £115.

These photographs can be produced in a larger size if required, please contact us for more information.

The photos are made to order so please be patient, colours and tones may slightly differ to those illustrated.
