Description

Wilkinson Fishing Engraving - Home of the Brown Trout.

This charming artist's proof drypoint etching, beautifully mounted and framed, is signed in pencil by the artist Norman Wilkinson, the celebrated British painter and printmaker. Titled Home of the Brown Trout, the scene depicts an angler standing on the rocks beside a river, peacefully fishing while smoking a pipe. Attached to the reverse is a typed label reading: 139. Norman Wilkinson, CBE, PRI, ROI (1878-1973). Home of the Brown Trout. Signed Artist's Proof Aquatint. 9½" x 7½".

Frame size: 45 cm high by 49½ cm wide.

Drypoint is a traditional printmaking technique in which an image is incised directly onto a copper plate using a sharp etching needle. The process creates rich, expressive lines that capture the spontaneity and character of a hand-drawn work. Once inked, the plate can be printed multiple times, enabling the artist to produce a limited edition of original prints.
