Description

Billiard Engraving, The Billiard Players.

An atmospheric billiard engraving 'The Billiard Players' after the original painting in the Royal Academy by the Hon. John Collier (1850 - 1934), a prominent London artist. The image shows two gentlemen playing billiards, one is working out his next shot whilst being watch by his competitor. Three other gentlemen can be seen seated in the background enjoying a cigarette and a cup of tea, very English.

John Maler Collier OBE RP ROI was a British painter and writer and was one of the most prominent portrait painters of his generation. He studied painting in Paris with Jean-Paul Laurens and at the Munich Academy.
