Description

Cecil Aldin Dog Print, Gentleman Of Character.
A classic piece of Aldin's canine work, 'Gentleman Of Character'. A signed colour lithograph in new frame. This print, like many of Aldin's works, reflects his deep affection for dogs and his remarkable ability to capture their unique characters. The subject in this piece is a black terrier dog in a seated, upright pose with a typical terrier head tilt, with a remarkably expressive face that exudes intelligence and dignified self-assurance. The background is minimal and softly sketched, focusing all the attention on the terrier. Aldin's talent lies in conveying personality through posture and gaze, and this work is a prime example and over the years has been published with various titles, Gentleman Of Character and Who Said Policeman amongst them.
